Caroline Brinkerhoff Former Mokena Resident Dies

Mrs. Caroline Brinkerhoff, widow of the late Martin S. Brinkerhoff, aged 79 years, died Saturday in Silver Cross hospital, Joliet. She was a resident of Mokena for many years, residing on the old Mokena Mineral Spring Farm south of Mokena and later in the old Noble Jones place which formerly stood where the St. John Evangelical church is now located.

After leaving Mokena Mr. Brinkerhoff served as guard at the Joliet penitentiary and located in Lockport where he died in February, 1941. Mrs. Brinkerhoff resided in Lockport for about 22 years. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Chamberlain and was born in Joliet.

For the past year she has been residing at the Hobbs hotel in Joliet. On the night of December 21 she suffered a stroke in the Davidson cafeteria. Following the stroke she was removed to the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. J. Coady in Minooka and taken to Silver Cross hospital, Joliet Dec. 26 when her condition became more serious.

Surviving are two sons, Dr. Frank E. of Beloit, Wis., Oliver of Chicago, one daughter Mrs. J. J. Coady of Minooka, four grand children and three great-grand children.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the Sonntag Funeral home in Joliet.

During her residence in Mokena Mrs. Brinkerhoff was deeply interested in the social and church circles of the community and made a host of friends.

Court Finds In Favor of Mokena Banker In Suit

Judgment for $14,686.65 was entered in Circuit Court Saturday by Circuit Court Judge James V. Bartley against Fred Knudsen of Mokena and in favor of Everett J. Cooper, cashier of the Mokena State Bank and successor trustee for the Wm. H. Beckstein estate.

Judge Bartley found in favor of the plaintiff after having the case under advisement for several weeks. The matter was argued early in December. Judgment for the cost of the suit was entered against Knudsen also.

On a counter claim filed by Knudsen the court also found in favor of Cooper. Knudsen signed the guarantee on an $8,000 note. It was this that resulted in the suit. The principal amount involved in the suit was $8,000 with the remaining $6,686 listed as interest. The note was for a second mortgage on land in Montana. Shortly before his death, the late Mr. Beckstein purchased the note. Interest on the note has been accumulating since that time, Feb. 1, 1918 it was pointed out.

Attorney Irving Shutt represented Mr. Cooper while Mr. Knudsen was represented by Attorney A. H. Krusemark.

It's Obvious Who Runs the Government

We call special attention to the large adv. of the General Motors in regard to the demand of the unions to have a look at the books of the big corporations appearing in this issue.

We feel that if this demand is carried out then every union should be compelled to open their books for public inspection to see what becomes of the dues the union members pay and for which no accounting is made.

The CIO is obviously the present government of the United States with the complete sanction of the New Deal.

The New Deal owes its job to the CIO and must therefore appease its master whenever called upon to do so. It's simple as that. The CIO is hell bent on destroying our national economy. That's perfectly obvious too.

Mokena Board Plans Passage Fire Arms Ordinance

One of the chief topics under consideration at the Mokena village board meeting Tuesday night was the passing of an ordinance prohibiting the discharge of firearms in the village limits. A search of the village records revealed that the only ordinance the village has on its books pertains to prohibiting the firing of bb guns in the corporate limits. Many complaints have been made that youngsters have been firing .22 caliber guns in the village endangering the lives of residents.

Walter Cappel appeared before the board and lodged a complaint against Howard Scheiblich a neighbor, charging he was dumping refuse from his pigeon coote and rabbitry along the street facing the Cappel place. The board instructed Alvin S. Sorensen to write Mr. Scheiblich ordering him to stop this practice, also to remove certain signs he had posted along the street near his residence.

The fire headquarters also came in for discussion. It was found that the entrance to the fire department quarters is a trifle too low to clear the hose reels on the new fire truck and it was ordered that the doorway be raised to afford the needed clearance.

The regular monthly meeting of the St. George's Ladies' Society was held Tuesday evening, Jan. 8, 1946. Despite the rain, many of our old friends and several new ones joined us for a full evening.

Plans were made for the distribution of chance books to award a very lovely hand made lace tablecloth which was donated by Mrs. Wesolowski. The award will take place at the annual dance given by the Men's Club of St. George, Saturday night, March 2, 1946. This is one of those lovely tablecloths which sells for eighty five dollars at Marshall Fields so we are indeed fortunate in having the opportunity to award it. The table cloth will be on display in the rear of the church and in the window of a local merchant. "Take a look, then take a chance!"

The ladies are also to have a fancy work booth at this dance and will feature hand made aprons, guest towels, lace edged handkerchiefs, hot pad holders and homemade bakery goods. Won't that be a wonderful night? What night? Why, Saturday night, March 2, 1946 at Saenger Hall, Tinley Park.

We are sorry to report the illness of Mrs. Bamrick and offer our sincere wishes that she will soon be with us again. Mrs. Mack Devlin's daughter is recovering from her bout with the automobile Christmas Eve for which we are very grateful. Best wishes to both.

For the week ending December 1, the total of jobless veterans was 247,360 out of about 4,000,000 discharged from the armed services.

But according to records of the veterans' administration, each week sees an increase in the number of jobless in all states except three. These three are Michigan, where as of November 24 and the week ending December 1, unemployment had decreased from 18,414 to 13,770; Ohio, where the decrease was from 3,954 to 1,337 and in Oklahoma where jobless decreased from 2,430 to 1,434.

Questions and Answers

Q. My boy entered the army in June, 1943, and went overseas early in December of the same year. I am his aged and crippled mother, all the dependent he has. Is he entitled to a discharge? — M. W., South Edmiston, N. Y.

A. Not necessarily. If you wish to apply for his discharge on a dependency or hardship basis, consult with your local Red Cross about inaugurating such a discharge.

Q. Would a discharged soldier with 40 months' service, 27 months overseas, be eligible for the $20 per week income, where he has rented a farm and moved to same, is married and has no regular income? — A. L., Winfield, Kans.

A. No. The veterans' administration says you must register with the USES and apply for a job in order to be eligible for unemployment compensation. However, the law says that where a veteran enters business for himself and his earnings in the previous month were less than $100, he may apply for an allowance equal to the difference between $100 and his net earnings for that month. Suggest you apply to your nearest regional veterans' administration office to determine if farming is regarded as a business.

Q. My brother has served four years in the army, two in the states and two overseas. He is in the air corps and has 70 points. Why is he not already discharged? — Sister, Converse, La.

A. There is no reason why he is not already out of the army, if he wants to be out, unless he is in the Pacific theater where there is a shortage of transportation. Return of some high point men is being held up because of lack of transportation from this area.

Q. My husband was inducted into the army in July, 1942, at which time we had one child. For three months, August, September and October, 1942, I did not receive an allotment. Am I entitled to get that pay now? I wrote to them many times but never got an answer. My husband is now discharged. — Wife, Greenbush, Minn.

A. Write to the Office of Dependency Benefits, War department, Newark, N. J.

Q. If boys who had signed up for one year in the regular army are sent overseas, will they be returned to the states when their year is up or will they have to remain until they get enough points? — F. L., Lancaster, Wis.

A. If you mean boys who have reenlisted in the regular army for one year after at least six months' service, they will be discharged at the end of the year's service.

Q. Is there any chance of my husband getting a discharge from the army on the ground of owning a small farm? He is over 35 but has only three points to his credit. — A reader, Columbus, Ohio.

A. There is not much chance unless he can prove that the produce from his farm constitutes a public necessity in his community.

Q. Please tell me why there are men walking around with discharges and 41 points and no children, when my husband is in Europe with 68 points and four children? — Mrs. L. H., Charlottesville, Va.

A. Your husband is certainly eligible for a discharge and the war department says he should be home by January 1, 1946, unless he has requested continued overseas service. All men with three children are eligible for discharge under present discharge rulings of army.

A PEOPLE DELIVERED

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 6:6-8; 13:17-22. GOLDEN TEXT—I will trust, and not be afraid; for the Lord Jehovah even the Lord, is my strength.—Isaiah 12:2.

"Is thy God able to deliver thee?" was the question asked of Daniel in the lions' den (Dan. 6:20). It is in the minds and on the lips of many in every hour of crisis.

God is able to deliver. Moses found that out when in answer to his complaint that the Lord had done nothing for his suffering people (Exod. 5:22), the Lord revealed Himself as the One who was not only able but ready to take them out of their bondage.

I. God's Promise (6:6-8). Moses was to remember that he was dealing with the Eternal One, unchangeable, and always true to His word and able to make His will come to pass (v. 2, 3).

So often men in dealing with God think of Him in terms of their own weakness and failure. What we need is to have a Godlike conception of God, not a manlike idea of Him. God is the infinite and the Eternal One with whom we have no right to quarrel, and whose dealings with us are too high for us to judge (Ps. 139:1-6).

God's covenant with His people was established (v. 4). He had heard their cry (v. 5), and His deliverance was sure (v. 6). The only thing Moses had to do was to wait and see God work.

That word "wait" is a little one. It seems to call for no effort, to be easy of fulfillment; yet it seems to be the hardest thing for a human being to do. Christians who can speak and work for God when things are active and moving become querulous and despondent when they have to wait or when they are laid aside for a time.

His promise is sure. That is not just a religious sentiment. It is a fact, and it is proved by history.

II. God's Plan (13:17-19). There was a direct, easy road along the coast of the Mediterranean up to Canaan, but God with His pillar of cloud and fire did not lead in that way.

How strange that He should take them by a longer, more difficult way! Not at all. He knew the danger of the easy way. It was there that the warlike Philistines would be lying in ambush. Such immediate conflict would discourage Israel and tempt them to return to the fleshpots of Egypt. So He took them the other way.

Note that God's guidance for them was one of intelligent planning, not just impulse or chance. He knew what to do, and He did it, for their good.

God has a plan, not only for the nations, but also for individuals, for your life and mine. Let us find His will for us, for it is good, acceptable and perfect (Rom. 12:1, 2).

Note the honoring of the faith of Joseph in God's promise (v. 19). The memory of his assurance was a blessing to his descendants, and they honored it and him. What will our descendants have to say about our faith in God?

III. God's Presence (13:20-22). Our God does not just send a plan or program to His people. He is always with them and is ready to go before them.

God's plan is made known to His people as they follow Him step by step. This means that there must be guidance, moment by moment, if His plan is to be worked out. He gives such guidance and it is only when His children fail to follow it that the pattern of life becomes confused.

The field of divine guidance is one in which Christians have widely divergent experiences. Some know the sweet, unconfused daily experience of God's hand upon them, caring for even the minor details (or are they minor?) of life. Others have known the directive power of God in some life crisis, but not in the ordinary affairs of life. Many, and perhaps most, think of divine guidance as a spiritual theory of which the preacher talks, but know nothing of it in their own lives.

What makes this great difference? Faith—or the lack of it. Those who trust God accept and receive His blessed leadership moment by moment. It is as simple as that. Others reach out and take it when the pressure of life makes them cast themselves on God. Others simply muddle along "doing their best," which is not their best, for God is not in it.

The pillar of cloud, which became luminous at night, was ideal for the guidance of Israel. It provided shade from the hot sun by day, and it was a sure guide in the darkness of the night.

We who believe in Christ have an even better and more precious evidence of God's presence—the Holy Spirit who indwells us. He reveals God's will to us, urging us on, or restraining us as the need may be. Are we obedient to His blessed promptings? Do we walk in the light of His perfect guidance?

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

AN INNER SANCTUM MYSTERY
STARRING ARAB AND ANDY BLAKE

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lt. Andy Blake and his wife, Arab, discovered evidence of a spy ring headed by a Mr. Jones. They arranged to have Jones and his gang follow to Andy's home. While there Renee, who kept the hangout, came through the window and was taken to the cellar. Arab tried to escape but was captured by Jones. Renee tried to help Andy by cutting a small hole over his heart so that when Jones broke into the cellar he left Andy there, believing him dead. Andy rushed to his superior, reported the whole matter, then headed to a black market gas station used by Jones. He captured the operator, but not until the operator had sent out an alarm to the gang.

CHAPTER XIII

The War Department connection came through and I gave the extension number. In the few seconds' pause I yanked at buttons, squirmed out of my blouse. The regulation belt with its telltale brass buckle and keeper went next. It was just as well to be set. I had the tie half undone as our branch secretary answered the phone.

"It's Blake," I said. "Get Colonel Parker."

In another moment his voice rumbled over the wire and I began babbling over the story and trying to listen to him with one ear and to road noises with the other. I was incoherent at first. If an average person had been on the other end, saying "Huh?" and "What's that?" and "I didn't get that," we'd have had the wire snarled faster than a kitten with a ball of yarn. But the kiff brought me along like a C.O. handling a green forward observer. When I finished, he had all the facts and he had them straight.

"Blake," he said, "can you give us fifteen minutes?"

"I'll try, sir. But the way this guy's listening he expects his friends awfully soon."

"Got a gun?"

"No, sir."

"Then get your prisoner hidden and—"

My left ear went out of business and my right took over. It had picked up a faint hum. Like bees swarming. But bees don't swarm in late October.

"Blake, did you hear me?"

The hum was rising. Ninety horsepower would sound like that a quarter mile away.

"Blake! Blake!"

I whirled to the mouthpiece. "Car on the way, Colonel. Hitting plenty. This looks like it."

"Won't hold you, then. Good luck."

The receiver clacked. I slammed it into the holder, and cleared for action. My fingers had finished loosening my tie as I talked. I flung it into a corner, ripped the shoulder straps from my O.D. shirt, and got rid of my dog tags. That left nothing to scream at. Two hundred yards down the road tires yowled around the curve. I dropped to the floor and rolled oil and grease and dirt into my clothes. It wasn't enough. I scrambled to the workbench and found a battered tin can filled with penetrating oil and rusted parts. I dipped both hands in it, ran them through my hair. They were looking for a redheaded guy. I gave my face a smearing, snatched an old sweater from a hook, dove into it, and wiped the lanky man's crumpled felt hat.

The shack trembled to the roar of eight cylinders. Brakes shrieked. I slugged the lanky man back of the ear just hard enough to make him groggy. Not a time for playing nice. Then I ran outside and saw dust still spurting behind a big sedan.

"Jeez," I yelled, "am I glad you guys got here! I thought you was never comin'!" Two big men piled out of the car and came at me like guards double-teaming a tackle. Big hands jolted me, twisted my arms into pretzels behind my back, slapped my body. I howled, "Take it easy! I'm with you guys!"

They moved in high gear but thought in low. Right away they handed me the lanky man's name.

"Who're you?" one said. "Where's Eddie? Make it fast if you wanna be able to scratch again." He gave the arm he held an extra twist.

"Eddie got nailed!" I cried. "I'm just tryin' to help. Gimme a chance. The army put the snatch on him!"

The pressure eased. Two square stolid faces pushed close to mine. "Whatcha mean, the army? Quit yammering and give out!"

"I'm tryin', fellows. This army lieutenant come back, see? He was onto Eddie sugarin' his gas. He sticks a rod in Eddie's ribs and says come on, buddy, we're goin' for a trip up U. S. 1 and you're gonna show me where Jones and Raeder and the others hang out. And he makes Eddie get in his car and they drive off. Jeez, it was oney a couple minutes after Eddie buzzed you."

"What were you doin' all this time?"

"I was in the house. I watched him. He didn't know there was anybody but Eddie. I couldn't do nothing! I didn't have no rod."

One of them jarred me with the heel of his thick hand. "Yah," he said, "if you'd had a rod you wouldn't of used it. You don't weigh in like a real guy, for my money."

The other nodded, said, "I lined him up for a rat." They looked at me disgustedly, but let my arms go. They weren't so worried about me now. They had me typed, and it was a type they understood. I had been lucky. It isn't healthy to puzzle guys like them. Playing rat might not be nice work, but there was more future in it than playing suspicious character.

"Whaddya want?" I whined. "Want me to come out and bite that rod outta his hand?"

One of them slapped me. Not hard. The kind of slap that tells a rat he belongs. The kind a real guy gets on his back. "What was you doin' here, huh?"

"Just helpin' Eddie out, that's all. Listen, fellows—"

"Aah, Eddie didn't go in for help-ers. You're hidin' out. Who's lookin' for you, huh?"

"It was just a little job I pulled up north. Nothin' much."

"Yeah? What kind of job? Let's hear it."

"You'll make him cry. He never pulled a job. Where's your draft card, jerk?"

"I—I lost it somewhere."

"It gets me," one of them said. "These jerks will plead to anything except keepin' one jump ahead of a Greetings."

"All right, 1-A. Fill up the tank, quick."

I fumbled in my pocket, brought out the key. That seemed to wipe out any remaining suspicion. I went to work filling their tank. My hands kept shaking. All they had to do was to glance into the repair shop but they didn't. I finished the wasn't the car, and the driver slowed to check. But the car had Delaware plates and we went on.

We slipped through Baltimore shortly after ten. Then came open country, and the driver swerved to the side of the road and halted.

"Well?" he said, scowling at me. "Who, me?" I asked.

An elbow slammed into my ribs. Not extra hard. Just enough to remind me of my place. "Where's the car? Where's Eddie?"

"How would I know?" I whined. "I ain't been carryin' them in my pocket."

"A clown," the driver said, reaching back to clip my jaw warningly. "Why didn't we spot that car? You said he took Eddie up U. S. 1. What about the sugar in his gas tank? We didn't see no green coop stopped anywhere."

"Maybe he stopped and drained his tank before we caught up," I said. "He could have had time for a fast job. He could still be up ahead, couldn't he?"

"Not now, jerk, not now." He looked at me from empty blue eyes, and said, "You know why? On account of Eddie don't know where we go from Baltimore."

It took a few seconds for that to sink in. When it did, I got sick. The army wouldn't be able to find out the location of the hangout from Eddie. He would give them Baltimore and then they would have to guess. They still had the whole Jersey and Maryland coastline to work on. It would take ten divisions to check that coastline, and it couldn't be done between now and tomorrow morning. About now was time for me to get my brain out of cold storage. I had been letting things slide, counting on others to clean up the mess. I hadn't even noticed, for example, that we had turned off U. S. 1 in Baltimore and had taken the more easterly highway: 40. It took a route marker near the car to make me realize that.

"What do you think?" the driver asked his buddy.

"Get going. But watch for a tail."

"If you guys don't want me no more," I said, "I'll thumb a ride back and—"

A slap ended that try. "We're taking you along, jerk," my companion said. "The chief might want to get a load of you."

From that point on we didn't try to set any speed records. In open country we eased along at thirty. Occasionally another car would tag along behind us for a while, and the big men would start to worry. Our car would drift into a side road and then crouch on its rear springs from sudden acceleration. Sometimes we made long detours, or turned into side roads and parked to watch traffic on the highway. Once a light plane circled overhead and the big car ran for cover like a rabbit under a hawk.

A little while later I noticed my companion staring at my shoes. The shoes were dirty enough, but the russet leather wasn't cracked, the laces were neat, and the heels weren't run over at the back. I shuffled my feet back out of sight. Nothing was said, but I knew that this and other odd facts were being studied. The two big men had low-gear minds, but low gear will get you places the same as high if you have time to spare. And low-gear minds aren't likely to get off the track.

We stopped for more gas at a place in Delaware. They let me go into the washroom alone while my companion smoked a cigarette outside the window. I had time to tear off a piece of paper towel, write Colonel Parker's War Department address, and print: ONE-THIRTY MID-DELAWARE SEDAN VIRGINIA LICENSE 360642 ROUTE 40 HEADED JERSEY STOP UNDER SUSPICION BUT NOT YET PRISONER STOP BLAKE. Underneath I wrote: Telegram, URGENT! I underlined URGENT three times, and backed it up by folding a five-dollar bill in the paper. It made a small wad which I could hide in my hand until I got a chance to pass it to somebody respectable.

They let me get away with that, but when we reached the Newcastle-Pennsylvania ferry one of them stuck beside me wherever I went. I had no chance to slip the telegram to anyone. By the time we rolled up the Jersey ramp the wadded paper was getting damp with sweat. As we drove on I noticed that my pal no longer kept his automatic in his pocket. It was on the far side of the seat beside him. I knew what the books said to do: clip him across the throat, grab the gun, and plug the man up front. But maybe my pals hadn't read the same books. And I hadn't the right to take that kind of gamble... yet.

Ten miles into Jersey we stopped at a diner for coffee and sinkers. A faded middle-aged woman served us and wondered aloud if we knew a war job for anybody with arthritis. She told us that gas rationing had ruined the diner business.

When we finished I made my bid. "Let me take this," I said, and went to the cash register before they could answer. I dug out a dollar bill with a flourish, turned my back to them, and handed the woman the dollar and the folded note. She gave me the change from the dollar, fingered the note, saw the five, and started to speak.

job, screwed the cap on tight. I had their license number and a good description. They wouldn't get far up U. S. 1.

"You oughta be able to catch that car," I said. "He don't have too much of a lead. Smack him one for me, will you?"

One of them laughed. "Do your own smacking," he said. He wrenched open the rear door and shoved me into the car. "We like your company."

"Listen, fellows, I got to stick around here! Jeez, if a highway cop says where's my draft card and I—"

"Shut up! We need you to spot the car." He climbed in beside me. "Take it away, chum," he told his partner.

The engine howled. The big sedan made a rocking turn which slammed me against my companion, and roared back the way it had come. Only five minutes had passed since Colonel Parker had hung up. Five minutes... and he had asked me for fifteen. I had let him down. I had let a lot of swell people down. And I might have cost Arab her only chance of rescue.

It was no use counting on cops, but the army was something else. Every time we screamed around a bend I prayed for a road block and a squad of tough G.I.'s from Meade in battle dress. A couple of phone calls from the gas station would set up this road until armor couldn't get through. Curve after curve loomed ahead and then dwindled in the rear-view mirror. I chilled a little more each time. My idea had been on the optimistic side. I couldn't expect the army to read minds.

Probably they were losing time right now searching the underbrush around the gas station for my body. When they didn't find it they wouldn't know where to look next... until they got the lanky man talking. It takes time to loosen up a man when you don't use Axis methods. Until he talked, the army was looking for an unidentified car filled with an unknown number of strangers headed in an undisclosed direction.

The car neared Baltimore. Once the man next to me snapped orders to keep a closer watch for the green coupe, I had described. Both he and the driver were getting jumpy. We spotted a green car at a diner, and two thick automatics slid out into two big hands. They almost seemed to doubt my word when I said it

Ironing Pads

Today, almost every woman's or child's garment has shoulder pads for styling and at times these are a nuisance, particularly in wash clothes if left in the garment when washing. To simplify the ironing job, remove the pads before washing and sew snaps on so that they will be easily replaced. This little trick saves a lot of work, and the pads are always in the right place—smooth and slick—the way they were meant to be.

Fire Tiles

Glazed wall tiles used in kitchens and baths are usually fired twice during production, the first time at temperatures exceeding 2,100 degrees. Glazes make the tile surface impervious to water and are produced in a great variety of colors and shades. The first firing of tile may require three to four days in the kiln. The second, at lower temperatures, usually takes two to three days.

Named Ships

Probably as sound a theory as can be offered as to why a ship is called "she" goes back even earlier than the New Testament, to the time of the Greek mariners. They gave their ships feminine names, possibly out of deference to Athene, goddess of the sea.

Fasten Casters

When casters on pieces of old furniture have that annoying habit of dropping out, turn the furniture upside down and pour melted paraffin into the hole. Then insert the caster and let the wax harden.

Line Crack

When your favorite vase or flower bowl develops a small crack, line or coat the inside with a thick layer of paraffin. If the crack isn't too bad the vase may be used indefinitely.

Pot Up Herbs

Pot up tender herbs preparatory to bringing them indoors for the winter. Gather leaves wanted for drying from any of the herbs, tender or hardy, before the first frost arrives.

New Bird

Sutton's warbler was discovered in West Virginia in 1939, or 21 years after ornithologists supposed all birds in eastern America had been tracked down.

Processed Lambs

The first carload of lambs ever to be processed in a Wyoming packing house, left Casper, Wyo., this summer for a large Chicago meat distributing plant.

Sponge Felt

If you have black or blue felt and it needs a good cleaning, sponge it with a teaspoon of ammonia mixed with half a cup of cold tea.

Many Wells Need Deepening

There has been a marked lowering of the level of water in wells over large parts of the United States in recent years.

Tire Ears

Your ears become tired easily when exposed to monotonous sounds, say the Sonotone research laboratories.

Sabotage in Its Origin

Because the French used to throw their wooden shoes (sabots) into machinery, the word sabotage was coined.

Before Ironing

Place sprinkled and rolled up clothes for ironing on a warm radiator for a short time before ironing.

Sugar Substitute

Corn syrup or honey may be substituted for up to 25 per cent of the sugar in freezing peaches.

Daily Weather Map

A daily weather map of the United States was first published by the government in 1871.

Log Cabins Date From 1638
Swedes who settled on Delaware bay in 1638 built the first log cabins

Fish Ears

Fish have no external ears or special mechanism for conducting sounds to the internal ears, which are embedded deeply in the skull. Sounds in the water are conducted through the bone of the skull to the inner ears of a fish. However, ears of fish do not have a cochlea, as do human ears. For this reason, it is believed that the hearing of fish is poorly developed.

Strange Sea Animal

There are a number of animals that live in the sea, but about the strangest of all is the manatee. One of the strangest things about them is the fact that Christopher Columbus mistook them for mermaids. The modern conception of a "mermaid" is about as close to the appearance of a manatee as a mountain is to a molehill.

Ship's Anchor

The longer the length of anchor chain let out by a ship, the more securely she is held. Each section of chain is called a shot, and the bin where the chain rests is called a locker. Thus, "another shot in her locker" means she still has a reserve to use as a last resort. The saying has become part of our language ashore.

Loosen Cardigans

Tight cardigans can be let out by binding the neck and front with satin blanket binding. Make buttonholes in the binding on one side; sew buttons on the other. The added width will relieve the strain on the sweater. If you can't find binding in a shade to match the sweater, use a contrasting hue.

Tint Starch

White starch will show on dark fabrics. Where starching is called for, tint it before using—coffee or tea for browns and bluing for dark blues. Or you may choose to use one of the ready-tinted commercial starches.

Dry Fast

Hang dark-colored clothes in the shade. They always look better when dried quickly to the right degree of dampness for ironing. Then keep them rolled in a turkis towel until time to iron.

Seagull Landlubber

The seagull is a landlubber as compared with the real birds of the sea. While the seagull rarely gets far from shore, many a seabird spends most of its life out of sight of land.

Mastered Boat Building

The Chinese are believed to have been the earliest of all peoples to solve the chief problems of boat building, and to have first worked out the art of navigation.

Cotton Planting

Under normal conditions in warm climates cultivated cotton is a perennial. But in the United States, climatic conditions necessitate annual plantings.

Checks Ivy

Strong yellow soap rubbed on arms and legs before you go hiking over unfamiliar ground prevents any trouble from poison ivy or poison oak.

Save Juices

For use in making soups, keep the extra juices from cooked or canned vegetables in a jar in your refrigerator.

Knotting Thread

Thread won't knot or kink as easily when sewing by hand if you will make your knot in the end of thread that first leaves the spool.

Weatherproof Cinder Block

Cinder block must be treated with a weatherproofing compound to make the building water proof.

Atomic Disturbances

Light, radio, x-rays and other electro-magnetic waves are caused by atomic disturbances.

Oil Production

Crude oil production in California during 1944 was 310,992,000 barrels, valued at $323,432,000.

SERVICE MEN'S LETTERS

Mrs. H. Kruspe, Chairman

Nov. 11, 1945

Ryensburg, Germany

Dear Mrs. Kruspe and Ladies: I received my Christmas package yesterday. Many thanks for your thoughtfulness. The useful articles are very handy and myself and the boys in the room really appreciated the eating material.

It hasn't been too cold here as yet. We had our first snow yesterday, but it didn't stick. I dread seeing winter come again, but it can't compare like the last one. We are at least living like civilized beings this year. We are living in a German S. S. Barracks, and it isn't too badly set up at all. We finally got our "Maintenance Technicians Club" going this week and it has proved a good place to spend your spare time.

I have just about recovered from my furlough. I spent about 8 1/2 days in London and stopped off in Paris long enough coming and going, to "do the town" pretty well.

May I wish you all a Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year. I know this Christmas is going to be much merrier for me than the last, but there won't be a Merry Christmas for us til we are back in good old Orland. Thanks again for the fine Christmas package. I hope this letter made some sense, as I am in charge of it today and had several interruptions. Hope to see you all next spring. I remain, Yours,

Clifford C. Horn

Nov. 17, 1945, Germany.

Dear Mrs. Kruspe:

I received your Christmas box yesterday and appreciate it very much. It was very nice and just the things that a soldier needs most. I know there must be many of the boys coming home from the Army now. It sure will feel good for me I know to go on a boat and start for the good old USA. I hope to get home in January some time. I was in France nine months and have been in Germany about seven months now. I have seen some beautiful country since in Europe. Germany is very beautiful, something like Missouri, many hills and most of the trees are pine, they are very pretty. I was up in Austria on a tour about a week ago, that sure is beautiful scenery up there. We were up in the mountains. They were very high and there was snow up on the top of them. Sure was a pretty sight with trees all up the side of the mountains. We of our Battalion have been very fortunate to get to make the trip. We had a special train, which was very nice, the line was electric throughout the trip. About one hundred of us went at a time, on the trip Mrs. Kruspe, I want to thank you again for the good work you have done for our boys overseas.

Your friend,
James C. Benton

A Protest

A good American protests the way Uncle Sam threatens to scatter his cash!

Where in heck did he get it anyway, except from the pockets of his nephews?

After World War I my husband and I found ourselves practically penniless, over night to this condition from the rating of millionaires, because German dyes began selling in this country far below the price my husband, a manufacturer of dyes, could make them and at the same time pay the standard American wage.

And did the government give us aid? And did we sit on our fannies and let the postman bring a pay check signed by Sam? It Did Not—and We Did Not.

With two very young sons to care for we began once more a struggle to make a living. And believe me it was a struggle—but it wasn't as dangerous and as difficult as the struggle our ancestors made in carving out this country—and it was this struggle of ours that made us worthy of the name American Citizens!

We got back on our financial feet by: Praying to God and Working Like the Devil! In the good old fashioned American manner.

Sittin' on yer fanny don't put yer on yer feet.

And so because of its editor's own experience, The Think Tank protests loudly against a dole.

Sure there ought to be a place to eat and a place to sleep, a place to keep warm in for those temporarily down on their luck. Therefore, this paper is 100 percent for a strong support if the Salvation Army. And there ought to be fat pensions for those who have reached a legitimate retiring age, and for the disabled. But not a red cent for a hand out to any able-bodied man or woman as long as there is a farm to be worked, a garden to be grown, an industry, store, or home that needs workers.

America did not prosper from citizens afraid to soil their hands with honest labor.

That was not the spirit of America. The spirit of America was and should be the spirit of self-reliance, of pride in work whatever it is, just so the job is honest!

—By Mildred Seydell, editor The Think Tank, Atlanta, Georgia

Dear Ladies:

Received your Xmas card and money order which I might add comes in mighty handy at times. Even though the war is over, it seems good to think that the people back home are still thinking of those still away.

It is my belief that I will be home and discharged sometime in the spring; although, from the reports on the weather that you are having back home, it might be a good idea to take out Adak citizenship papers and stay here. Really, I'm only joking as I would rather be home no matter what the weather is.

The weather up here has been quite nice so far, and I don't think we are in for any snow for Xmas.

Thanking you again, and when spring rolls around I hope to thank you in person.

Sincerely,
Freemont N. Warning.

Dear Ladies:

Arrived Stateside this afternoon after twenty days at sea, enroute from China to New York. After a brief pause here on the Pacific Coast we will continue our cruise on around via Panama.

The port directors had a truck load of mail waiting for us as we docked, so I received your Xmas gift just two days late.

Am sending my thanks for your thoughtfulness and kindness, immediately, for this seems to be the only way for me to be able to express my appreciation. My pen just doesn't seem to follow my mind as I try to write.

Thanks again, and I hope to see all again soon.

Yours,
Russell Bennett.

Dec. 26, 1945.

Dear Folks:

I received your nice Xmas gift and card and wish to thank you for them. I also wish to thank you for all the nice messages and gifts I received from you while in Service.

I think your club has been really wonderful during this war and am very happy to hear you are helping the boys who are still in service.

Sincerely yours,
Frederick B. Lauffer

Mrs. Elmer Schoeneck was taken to St. Margaret's hospital in Hammond, Indiana this week, as a patient.

Miss Dorothy Ann Rauch entertained her Sunday School class of St. John's church, in her home Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Milton Geuther is serving on the Jury in Chicago.

Mrs. Jeanette Jahnke has gone to Oregon to be with her husband, Sgt. Jahnke who is stationed there.

Mr. Dean Rueckert left Monday for Toronto, Canada on a business trip for Swift and Co.

The Mokena Book Club will meet in the home of Mrs. Fred Cappel Friday evening Jan. 18 at 8 o'clock.

We were mighty glad to see Harley Gillette Wednesday when he called at The News-Bulletin. Harley has been honorably discharged and he and his wife are wanting to move to Mokena as soon as they can find a house to rent. At present they are living in New Lenox.

Harley said he always received the News-Bulletin while in the Service, and read every word of it. Mokena seemed a long distance away when out in the Pacific among those many islands etc. If anyone who has rooms or a house to rent, can do so, it will give these returned servicemen a place to live.

With moderating weather work has been resumed on the Janes building on Front street next to the postoffice.

Lt. Forrest Perry of Camp McCoy, Wis. was a weekend guest in the L. G. Bruder home.

More than 80 riding stables have been established on private property adjacent to the preserves since the construction of its 170 miles of trails. Their 4000 horses, ridden over these trails in all weather, have created a maintenance problem requiring heavy expenditure of men, equipment and funds. Wild "cowboy" riding and riding off the trails, through the woodlands and picnic areas, have created such hazards and such destruction that the need for regulation became imperative.

Tinley Park 727A "LOOK AT THE BOOKS"OR"A FINGER IN THE PIE?"

Which is the UAW-CIO really after? Is it seeking facts--or new economic power? Does it want to know things--or run things?

These questions concern you as well as General Motors.

FOR YEARS THE FACTS ABOUT GENERAL MOTORS HAVE BEEN MADE PUBLIC.

IN SPITE OF THIS, THE UAW-CIO DEMANDS A CHANCE TO LOOK AT OUR BOOKS, WITH THE HINT THAT WE COULD MEET UNION DEMANDS "IF THE TRUTH WERE REALLY KNOWN."

WE HAVE FIRMLY DECLINED TO RECOGNIZE THIS AS A BASIS FOR BARGAINING:

1. The Full Facts are Published

How much General Motors takes in each year—how much it pays employees—how much it pays stockholders—how much it pays in taxes—how much net profit we make—and many other facts are plainly stated in annual reports and quarterly reports.

These are broadcast to 425,000 stockholders from coast to coast—sent to newspapers and libraries. Additional copies are free for the asking.

2. All Figures are Thoroughly Checked

Every General Motors annual statement is audited by outside auditors. Similar figures are filed with the Securities & Exchange Commission.

Does the UAW-CIO honestly believe that General Motors would or could deceive these experts?

3. Basis of Collective Bargaining is Defined

The Wagner Act lays down the rules for collective bargaining. These cover such areas as rates of pay, hours of work, working conditions.

No mention is made of earnings, prices, sales volume, taxes and the like. These are recognized as the problems of management.

4. Something New has been Added

The obvious fact is that the UAW-CIO has gone beyond its rights under the law—and is reaching not for information but for new power—not for a look at past figures, but for the power to sit in on forecasting and planning the future.

A "look at the books" is a clever catch phrase intended as an opening wedge whereby Unions hope to pry their way into the whole field of management.

It leads surely to the day when Union bosses, under threat of strike, will demand the right to tell WHAT we can make, WHEN we can make it, WHERE we can make it, and how much we must charge YOU—all with an eye on what labor can TAKE OUT of the business, rather than on the VALUE THAT GOES INTO THE PRODUCT.

5. This Threatens All Business

If the Union can do this in the case of General Motors, it can do it to every business in this land of ours.

Is this just imagination? Union spokesmen have said, "The Union has stated time after time that this issue is bigger than just an ordinary wage argument, that it is bigger than the Corporation and bigger than the Union."

For Labor Unions to use the monopolistic power of their vast membership to extend the scope of wage negotiations to include more than wages, hours and working conditions is the first step toward handing the management of business over to the Union bosses.

We therefore reject the idea of a "look at the books" not because we have anything to hide but because THE IDEA ITSELF hides a threat to GM, to all business, and to you, the public.

Wings Over Tinley! From a Cub Plane at 1500 feet in the sky, to me Tinley Parks looks like an exaggerated letter Y, with railroad tracks running right through the center and more green roofs than any other color. When I spotted the roof of the Tinley Park Times office it reminded me that it was "deadline" time. So I "high tailed" the plane back to the Airport, to write this column.

Flying Flashbacks! Year: 1908. The Wright Brothers were using a cow pasture for a flying field. Before each flight the cows were chased from the field and hummocks cleared away. Flying was done in the early morning and late afternoon when the wind was down. Planes were launched from a rail averaging 70 feet long and set up on the field according to wind direction. The wheels of the plane fit on the rail track. To start the engine a man pulled on the propeller, the pilot retarded the spark while two men held the wings. When the engine ceased sputtering, it was revived up to full speed. Then the pilot handwaved a starting signal, and the plane was given the most strenuous push possible from the tail. The man holding the right wing ran alongside trying to keep the plane in lateral balance, until it gathered balance with speed. And, became airborne, perhaps to stay up 8-10 even 15 minutes!

Year 1911: Pilots with the musical ear of a piano tuner had an advantage, for flying and landing wires on planes stretched and sagged. And a pilot tuned the wires-bringing the opposite sets of wires into melodic alignment. During the two or three hours it took to tune up for flight, the wind often became too strong, or the pilot too worn out to handle the controls!

Year 1943: Chicago World's Fair! From the rooftop of a building at 1109 N. Dearborn, I watched the first cross-ocean Air Armada reach its destination. The ill fated Balbo led his fleet of all-white ships in beautiful formation. They circled, then settled three at a time in the lagoon to be greeted by the cheers and adulation of the crowd, that was at the same time realizing the new scope of aviation!

Blue Bird: Last week I kept an Eagle eye on a young girl when she went up for her first flying lesson and reported her typical experiences. This week, because of weather, she could do nothing but "flutter" around the flight office, hoping for "raunchy" weather conditions to lift enough for student flights. She asked her instructor what she'd do next time up, and he said that if the wind was right they'd try some S turns. He then rushed out to help hanger planes from a sudden rain. So she began pestering everyone, asking what the wind was like when it was right, and what was an S turn. We "dived" away by saying her instructor could best tell her when they got up in the sky. This stopped our "eagerbeaver" until she spotted a book titled: Primary Air Maneuvers. When I left the flight office she was still waiting and hoping to fly, and meanwhile was deep in study. Looking "ceiling zero" in spirit!

Civil Air Patrol: Sunday the weather lifted leaving Rubinkam Airport looking slightly like a lake. But, unlike most airports in the vicinity, you could fly from it if you were good at duckin' puddles. During the afternoon, a Civil Air Patrol meeting was held in Sadr. 613-3's Airport Clubhouse. And it was good to see Captain Kingston, the flying Wolaks" Lt. Walter and 2nd Lt. Rudolph, also Dorothy and Herb Peterson. Emory Nadler from Monee, 2nd Lt. Fred Schrum, 2nd Lt. Geo. "Doc" Stevenson, 2nd Lt. Elmo Brennom, CAP Officer Anderson, 2nd Lt. Van Vorst Warrant Officer Cy Knudson, Lt. Jack Morton, and among others Fred Hennig, who rates congratulations for his promotion to Adjutant! In addition to the meeting, CAP members did a bit of "hanger flying" and some real airwork. Lt. Jack Morton did a little local flying before leaving for Springfield. He invited young Ronnie Langerderfer to be a passenger on a short hop. Ronnie jumped at the chance, said "sure!" made a dash to the plane, got in, dashed back to the flight office for his cap. Then, he spotted his dad new owner of Rubinkam, and Ronnie, with out breaking stride, shouted "I can go with Lt. Morton, can't I Pop?" Mr. Langerderfer said "Yes!" and with a "Now he asks me" grin, watched Ronnie "jet propel" himself into the plane and fly into the sky.

That's all for now.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

ART: "Saw you at the movies last night, Judge. That was quite a weekend that alcoholic went through, wasn't it?"

OLD JUDGE: "Sure was, but I'm afraid most people won't really understand it."

ART: "What do you mean, Judge?"

OLD JUDGE: "Simply this. That poor chap was really a sick man...not just a drunk. Studies by famous psychiatrists and the medical profession show that alcoholism is not caused by a craving for alcohol...it is usually the result of some deep-rooted social, physical or emotional condition. If that fellow had not turned to alcohol for escape, he would have turned to something else."

ART: "Are there many that get in that condition, Judge?"

OLD JUDGE: "Fortunately not, Art. Scientists at a great university have stated that approximately 95% of the people who drink do so sensibly. Only 5% are immoderate at times. In that 5% is the small number known as alcoholics. And the beverage distilling industry which does not want a single person to use its product immoderately, is cooperating fully in the solution of this problem."

How Do People Stand on Military Training? Editors Report on Their Communities

By AL JEDLICKA
WNU News Analyst.

FIFTY-SEVEN per cent of country newspaper editors polled in a nationwide survey by Western Newspaper Union favor compulsory peacetime military training, with 57.7 per cent of these approving of President Truman's proposal for one year of service for 18- to 20-year-old male youths. Thirty-seven per cent opposed compulsory training and 6 per cent remained undecided.

In the editors' report on prevailing sentiment for compulsory training in their communities, however, 44.3 per cent of the people stood against it, with 42.8 per cent approving and 12.4 per cent evenly divided.

With every section of the country heard from, southern editors showed the greatest support for compulsory training, with 66.6 per cent for it. Following were the North with 59.7 per cent; the East with 57.6 per cent and the West with 50 per cent. Southern editors approving compulsory training also showed the strongest preference for Mr. Truman's service program, 77.7 per cent being for it, while 58 per cent in the West favored it, 56.7 per cent in the North and 40 per cent in the East.

With 56 per cent of the people reported backing compulsory training, southern communities also were far out in front for the proposal, with the West following with 41.9 per cent and then the North with 40.9 per cent, and the East with 37 per cent.

Timely in view of pending congressional action on the President's measure for one year of military service for physically, morally and mentally fit 18- to 20-year-old youths of the nation, the WNU poll served to reflect grassroots sentiment on the all-important proposal. It seemed to justify congressional caution arising from strong, popular aversion to compulsory training, while also reflecting advanced acceptance by professional thinking.

Because editors were asked to gauge public opinion in their communities instead of actually polling it, however, some discrepancy might exist in their judgment of the sentiments prevailing in their localities. Since the country newspaper editor, of all persons, perhaps is the closest to the people about him, on the other hand, his observations may be considered fairly accurate.

Though the editors appeared out of step, rural community sentiment ran in line with the recent positions of the three great farm organizations on postwar service: The Farm Bureau favoring a broad program of physical fitness in schools and land grant colleges; the Grange proposing similar preparation and army pay sufficient to induce volunteers, and the Farmers Union advocating some form of combined civilian training modeled after the National Youth administration.

The WNU poll contrasted markedly with other nationwide tabulations embracing the large urban and country districts. The final editors' count of 57 per cent for compulsory training differed from the reported over-all figure of 71 per cent for professional people in other surveys, while the community count of 44.8 per cent contrasted with other findings of 35 per cent against.

North

In supporting both military conscription and President Truman's legislation with some modification Linwood C. Rodgers of the Luminary of Lockwood, Mo., wrote:

"The people of this community do not favor such legislation. They have many of their boys back home and want to keep them. The war is over and they do not want to anticipate another one.

"In my own personal opinion, the United States should adopt compulsory peacetime training. We served in the army and saw inadequately trained men thrown into combat, and that isn't good. We believe it is pretty well agreed that another war is inevitable and we can't stave it off by not training our men to be in readiness; in fact, that will only invite it sooner.

"I'd say that six months would be enough for the 18- to 20-year-olds to spend in training, for the basics will be all the trainee will receive in most cases anyway. In cases of extreme hardships . . . boys should be excused."

Agreeing with both proposals,

Bryant B. Voris of the Republican of Waterloo, Ill., said:

"Certainly there can be no harm in military training in America. The brass hats, of course, must be kept under control and must not possess the attitude 'the king can do no wrong. . . ."

"I do not believe that compulsory training was the cause of war in other countries where it was in effect. It was more the propaganda of 'Gott mit uns' and 'Deutschland uber alles' . . . which will not accompany our military training if it is American training.

"If we do have war, I would rather know our son had a year's training to back him up rather than the hurried training some of our boys had in this war without being ripe for it. . . ."

Favoring a modified form of postwar service, Dan W. Johnson of The Times of Ivanhoe, Minn., declared:

"The United States needs some pared cost us many extra lives . . . It is not going to hurt any healthy boy to learn the manual of arms. . . ."

Backing compulsory training, Carl Portman of the Record-Register of Coalgate, Okla., declared:

"We would leave to the army, navy and air corps officials the type and extent of military training. But we would emphasize the importance of physical culture and discipline in any training program which America might adopt, with particular stress on the building of strong bodies and clean minds for our young men."

Basing most of his opposition to compulsory service on moral grounds, O. D. Parks of The Graphic of Nashville, N. C., said:

"I do not think boys 18 to 20 years of age should be thrown into the environment of peacetime army life, especially with the liquor and beer situation what it is.

"I am all for a large standing army and for military training for poor physical condition, it would seem to indicate that the necessity is for a better standard of national health, which goes back to childhood and infancy. . . ."

"Would approve a regular standing army of greater size and a powerful navy by making voluntary enlistments as attractive as possible.

"Compulsory training would subject too many young men to bureaucratic rule and tend to develop a military dictatorship. . . ."

West

In supporting both compulsory military training and President Truman's plan, D. W. Robertson of the Searchlight of Culbertson, Mont., said:

"It is my opinion that a man cannot learn the fundamentals of modern warfare in less than one year.

form of military training, but it doesn't need a year's training for all males physically qualified at the teen-age level.

"Basic training in some form could be thrown in with high school or college ROTC, with perhaps a month's summer camp each year for your finished reserve.

"But for the standing army, there's only one thing—regulars. Make the air arm strong and make it sufficiently inviting that enough youth will choose it as a career. Of course, to make it inviting will mean cutting out some of the caste that permeates our present military establishment. . . ."

Declaring that we won the war because of our superior productive capacity and technical skill, Clarence V. Smazel of the Press of St. Louis, Mich., advocated a five-point program instead of postwar service:

"What we really need to do," he said, "is build one department of national defense under a civilian board of experts in fields useful to war; eliminate the war colleges of West Point and Annapolis with their class distinctions, privileges and traditionalism; make our economy function in peace so that we can always have a margin of productivity over anyone else . . . for war; establish secret nests of atomic bombs so that if anybody tried to eliminate our power by suddenly attacking our productive centers we would be able to hit back fast with more and better . . . and have men who know most and behave best in charge, at any level, of every military activity."

South

In calling for compulsory training under the President's plan, W. E. Chapman of the Enterprise of Indianapolis, Miss., wrote:

"Our people, as a rule, favor compulsory military peacetime training and we are hoping that the congress will pass such a law at an early date.

"Our teen-age boys have much idle time on their hands and you know the old saying, 'idleness is the devil's workshop.'

Asserting that the old adage "a stitch in time saves nine," H. W. Fleer of the Democrat of Waverly, Tenn., wrote the lesson should be applied now.

"Some argue that those nations that are everlastingly preparing always meet defeat," he said. "Not so . . . England prepared and so did France and they won out a second time.

"The fact that we were unprepared cost us many extra lives . . . It is not going to hurt any healthy boy to learn the manual of arms. . . ."

Backing compulsory training, Carl Portman of the Record-Register of Coalgate, Okla., declared:

"We would leave to the army, navy and air corps officials the type and extent of military training. But we would emphasize the importance of physical culture and discipline in any training program which America might adopt, with particular stress on the building of strong bodies and clean minds for our young men."

Basing most of his opposition to compulsory service on moral grounds, O. D. Parks of The Graphic of Nashville, N. C., said:

East

Advocating modified military training, Russell A. Wheelock of The Shopper of St. Johnsbury, Vt., wrote:

"By all means we should be armed, ready and willing to fight when our way of life is threatened. Therefore, military education in our schools and colleges—yes!

"If we are smart enough to cherish and control the atomic bomb, no country will war with us. Navies, armies, air forces are outmoded, and a waste of taxpayers' money. Money placed on armies would be spent to better advantage educating future scientists to cope with the enemy's weapons. A strict control of Japan and Germany will prevent wars. A strong international policy by America will back up world peace."

Supporting a modified program, C. D. Eldredge of the Courier of Winchendon, Mass., said:

"For young men about to continue their education after completing high school, I feel that a year spent in continuous military training would be a decided mistake. . . . Let the young man who is accepted for college combine his education with the military, and in that way not interrupt his program. It would not necessarily have to be an ROTC but something along the National Guard lines.

"In case of a young man who had no qualifications for college or inclination to continue his education, a 'hitch' in the National Guard would do the trick—with little chance of the youth of the nation becoming too military minded. . . ."

Believing the compulsory training to be counter to principles of freedom guaranteed in the Bill of Rights, M. E. Sunderland of The Record of Waterbury, Vt., declared:

"A public health program would be more to the point. With so many men rejected by selective service

If a lesser period is adopted, our boys will be going into battle only half trained, and this is as bad as no training at all. . . . The only way to avoid war in the future is to have a large enough army, sufficiently trained so that no nation will dare to attack us, and then don't go out looking for trouble.

"We have been fortunate in the last two wars to have time to train an army, but when the next one comes, time will not be allowed for training an army. Really, the only way to stop wars is to do as two senators have been brave enough to suggest, and that is to form an individual state of the world. . . ."

Urging a modified program, Edgar R. Simpson of the News of St. George, Utah, wrote:

"It is my observation that many people think of peacetime military training as a program of physical education and disciplinary training, which they favor. Most do not, however, seem anxious to see boys of 18 taken away from their homes, and opinions of returning servicemen point up some plan whereby boys could have the advantages of discipline, physical training and education along some lines that would benefit them in peacetime activities as well as for wartime preparation, as on a college campus or something of the sort in their home state or area."

Stating that while he didn't think it would worry the President, T. D. Caverly of the Valerian of Valier, Mont., disagreed with Mr. Truman's training legislation. Said he:

"We believe it would be a mighty good thing for every boy and girl in the country to put in a year under strict supervision as to hours and habits, to be trained in calisthenics and be under the direction of the best doctors during that time so the doctors could observe any physical trouble and correct it. But we believe this should not be done at the exact age of 18."

Declaring that the government should adopt a policy of encouraging science to develop the most modern materiel combat means, W. L. Rader of the Courier of Polson, Mont., thought: ". . . it is useless to draft a man for a year for just ordinary military training. This would mean nothing the way war would be carried on in the future and would just be an enormous expense.

"It seems to me what should be done is to have a few roving ambassadors that really keep an eye on what is going on in other countries. And when they come back and make a report—like Lindbergh did to England and the U. S.—we should do something about it. . . ."

Bird Should Have Spoken Err It Was Too Late!

Bill Jones stopped in at a pet store and was entranced by a remarkable bird that was not only beautiful to look at but also spoke fluently in eight languages. He paid a good round sum for the bird and asked to have it delivered to his home.

Reaching home at dinner time that evening, he inquired: "Has the bird that I ordered sent here come?"

"Yes, dear," his wife replied.

"It's in the oven now."

"What!" he exclaimed. "In the oven? Why, that bird could speak eight languages!"

"Then why didn't it say something?" asked the wife.

Swift Camera Photographs Explosive Action of 'Gas'

A movie camera that takes 40-000 pictures a second is used to photograph the explosive action of aviation gasoline at the NACA aircraft engine research laboratory in Cleveland, says Collier's.

This camera so slows down actions that if it were used to photograph a football player making a 40-yard run, the projection of the film, at the normal rate of 24 pictures a second, would require 2 hours and 20 minutes.

Paul Metzgar publisher of the Forum of Eldon, Iowa, commented: "It is my opinion that the military could and should be made attractive enough . . . to draw on the right kind of men seeking a career. In this way a sufficient armed force of trained intelligent men could be maintained at all times . . . and a sizable reserve could be retained by liberalizing benefits for men in that status.

"I personally oppose compulsory military training because I do not believe a young man drafted against his own will in peacetime is going to learn enough to make him valuable in a year.

"Industry could never survive if we depended upon the same quality of men who (as a whole) are satisfied with a military career under our present standards of compensation and prospects of advancement. . . ."

In bucking compulsory training, L.

M. Audritsh of The Echo of Green Springs, Ohio, wrote:

"The more we think of it, the more we are convinced that the universal peacetime military training program is a dud. . . . Any move to build armies is bound to turn into a contest among nations to see which can build the greatest, most powerful army. This one point alone can just about upset any 'national defense' angle put up by the militarists of the world."

Opposing all forms of military training, J. H. Cramer of the Journal of Blaine, Wash., said:

"A few young officers in the service seem to believe that one year of compulsory service should be required of all young men.

"But to me, this is only another move toward socialism or nazism. An army composed of all young men with trained officers naturally does not want to be trained unless they have a chance to fight."

The full pint thus made should last a family a long time, and gives you about four times as much cough medicine for your money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick results, you've never seen its superior. It seems to take hold instantly, loosening the phlegm, soothing the irritated membranes, and helping to clear the air passages. BUMPER BEEF AND FIELD CROPS BUILD FARM PROSPERITY

CHICAGO—Peacetime prosperity of Midwestern agriculture will depend not on the size of the farm operated, but on the crop yield per acre, a statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee points out.

"That includes the meat output from beef cattle, and the dairy production from milk cows as well as the yield from grain and field crops," the statement declares.

"In the competitive years ahead, the advantage will lie with the farmer who is able to boost his per

"The farmer's peacetime production program will be greatly aided by the fertilizer industry which is ready to meet his postwar needs."

HIGHER QUALITY CROPS PRODUCE HEALTHY HUMANS

CHICAGO — Soil conservation measures building the fertility of our farm lands can do more to improve the nation's peacetime health standards than all the pills and drug store panaceas put together, according to a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Human health depends on the soil," the statement points out. "If the soil is fertile, then the crops it produces will build strong bodies and sturdy physical characteristics. If the soil is poor, the crops it produces will be deficient in vitamins, minerals and proteins necessary for insuring healthy humans.

"The remedy for diet deficiencies lies in putting essential minerals in the form of mixed fertilizers into Nature's hands so that she can fabricate them into health-building foods for the human body."

BABSON DISCUSSES MARKET BREAKS

New York City, Jan. 11. Is another severe break in stock market prices necessary? Perhaps someday, but not just now. Need the market go up to a peak, as in 1929, and then come down with a crash? Certainly not. It is possible the "top" of the market could be a level plateau extending over months or perhaps years instead of a "peak".

REUTHER NOT TOO BAD

Heretofore bull markets have culminated in peaks. Due to this fact, my friends here in Wall Street think this must always be true. But because of cheap money and the excellent work that the Securities and Exchange Commission is doing for small investors, my Wall Street friends may be mistaken. The top of the present bull market may consist of a levelling off process whereby stocks could continue to sell at their highs for some time.

Most of the business leaders are sore at Walter Reuther and the CIO crowd in his attempt to mix up wages with profits. I grant this is an entirely new departure. The typical capitalist doesn't like anything new, unless it changes the rules in his favor. But may not Reuther be a friend of the small investor by his prevention of abnormal profits and the sustaining of purchasing power?

Market Breaks are Possible

This is not saying that a severe break in the stock market cannot come. It is very possible that the United States may get into a jam with Russia or some other country which could bring about World War III. Then there could be a collapse in city real estate and many industries, especially those in vulnerable cities near the sea coast. But with this there should be a scramble for self sustaining small farms away from the evil effects of atomic bombs. Why people do not give more thought to the future is beyond me. Surely, the only truly safe "life insurance" is good mother earth. I have some for each of my grandchildren.

Perhaps a more likely reason for a market break would be a fear of Communism or Socialism. When people in this country are finally convinced that Europe is going socialistic and that the cloud is constantly moving westward, investors will begin to sell. Banks, railroads, utilities, coal and oil stocks, and the stocks of such other large industrial as are now being "nationalized" in England and Europe will be liquidated first. Then there would be no buyers for these stocks, prices could crumble quickly, and the entire market could severely decline.

Stabilization or Destruction?

But eliminating the above scares, it is very possible, with the present money situation, aided by the SEC and the CIO, that the stock market may be stabilized at a high level for a few years, as it stabilized at a low level from December, 1938 to December 1942. Mind you, I am not guaranteeing anything excepting that conditions today are different from ever before. Either we are moving into a more stable world or else a large percentage of our present world is going to be wiped out. With atomic energy facing us, there can be no half way ground.

But who created this atomic energy? We know that the answer is "God created it"; in fact it may even be a manifestation of God. If so, it has unlimited possibilities for good, for making a healthier, happier and more prosperous world. Hence, I believe that atomic energy may bring about the spiritual awakening which this old world so much needs. If so, this discovery alone will be well worth the entire cost of World War II, both in lives and property. Market breaks seem very small matters to me compared with these truly magnificent possibilities.
